The docking rules are enforced rigidly. Regardless of extra work given by compulsion, every employee registerpercentage from his wages. The strictest of itemized accounts is ordered in this branch by the management. It means thousands of dollars in the treasury at the end of the year, Investigation proves that no records are kept of overtime. That would be too much on the order of self incrimination. Profits, dividends and surpluses would be affected visibly if such a record were discovered and all time had to be converted into cash.

It simply means $225 per week or $11,700 per year, an excellent sum to add to the year's profits. my friend McCarthy has a grievance Of this amount an average of 50 per cent is clear extortion. Hundreds of business houses through out this country are acquiring like and even larger sums in just such a man-

The claim has been made that all funds from the docking system are placed in the treasuries of the employees' insurance, mutual aid or beneficial societies. Whether this is a fact-or not is a question the officers of these societies glone can unswer.

The following are the more generally used docking rules: "A charge of 1 cent per minute for the first fifteen minutes, and the balance of time in proportion to wages." 'Fifteen cents to be charged when late one to fifteen minutes, and the balance of time according to wages." You can figure by these rules the enormous profits derived annually through this channel. Why shouldn't an employer be compelled to pay for extra time in the same proportion that he docks? Fifteen minutes is fifteen minutes
